THE SURVEY SAID?

Thank you to all of the respondents who completed our emergency preparedness survey recently. The information gleaned from this survey will help our emergency management and CERT teams in knowing how to better help our community in ways they most feel a need. Here are just a few highlights from the survey:

Most respondents reported thinking about what they would do in an emergency in the past month. There was general consensus that wildfires and earthquakes are residents' top concerns, with floods getting an honorable mention. More respondents have first aid kits than go bags. We are glad to know that many residents have fire extinguishers in their homes and many know how to use them. We are planning ways to offer fire extinguisher training with Adair Rural Fire & Rescue for anyone who would like it. We will make it fun for kids and informative for adults. Watch this space and our website for more information.

Two more points for future consideration include information on the disaster response system and evacuation orders and procedures. Finally, we are encouraged to know that our community is glad that there is a group of trained CERT volunteers in place to help them if a disaster does happen in our lovely little city. We are always looking to grow our ranks so that we can be the most effective we can possibly be. Please also remember that the city has a qualified Red Cross First Aid Instructor who teaches an Adult First Aid/CPR/AED course. We invite you to find out more about either opportunity by calling our offices.
